

Water Heaters for Children's Home

The Ciceron Children's home has been equipped with state of the art solar water heating systems thanks to the generous contribution of the US Ambassador to the Eastern Caribbean, Windjammer Landing, Consolidated Foods Limited and Ecosun Ltd. The four (4) solar water heaters valued at just over $17,000 have been described as "a very timely and much needed gift which will bring a large measure of comfort to the children of the home".

The official presentation of the sponsors' cheques was made on Thursday, February 21, 2008 at the home. Honourable Lennard Montoute, Minister for the Social Transformation, Public Service, Human Resource Development, Youth and Sports, and Dr. Robert Lewis, Parliamentary Representative for Castries South, were among the speakers at this activity. Representatives of the four sponsors (including Martin Dorville of CFL) were on hand for the ceremony including US Ambassador Mary Ourisman. Ambassador Ourisman is an active community leader who has frequently chaired events that raised millions of dollars for the many causes and institutions to which she is dedicated.

Ecosun Solar Water Heaters are based on the latest technology in solar water heating. They feature advancements such as the capability to heat water on both rainy and sunny days, as well as heat retention up to ten times greater than traditional solar water heaters.
